Duty to provide emergency and immediately necessary treatment

Practices have a contractual duty to provide emergency treatment and immediately necessary treatment free of charge for up to 14 days. There is no definition of immediately necessary treatment in primary medical services contract regulations. However, in relation to people who are visiting or not a resident in England, it should be viewed as including treatment of new conditions and also pre-existing conditions that have become exacerbated during the period of a person's stay in England, subject to the contractor's clinical judgement.
